WHAT IS COMING.

Nothing seems more inevitable than that the anti-trust decisions of the supreme court of the United States will drive all the constituent parts of the existing big combinations into some consolidations more solid, perhaps, than the United States Steel corporation now is. How much better off shall we be then than now?

The winning of these cases by the government suggests the entirely successful surgical operation followed not long after by the death of the patient.

The small interests are credited with having bought another Texas railroad. It would appear that the Goebels have not profited very much by their former experience with Texas railroads.

Three carloads of Democratic nominees were shipped from the Hand ranch near Las Vegas to Texas last week. New Mexico can grow almost anything.

Bassett has started a war on dogs. As soon as peace has been declared down there it is found the victorious army will march on Albuquerque and exterminate the canines up here.

Owing to the war in Mexico, El Paso will not hold her annual fair this fall. New Mexico's fair at Albuquerque is going to be held bigger and better than ever, war or no war.

The golf states are protesting loud and long against the location of a golf colony in the south. Lapeyre is no more dangerous than many other diseases that are not even colonized.

Secretary of State Knox is being asked to explain what became of $10,000 expended on his O. K. The answer it appears is quite simple. A son of Senator Hale got it.

That baseball game between Willard and Estes Sunday was conducted as bitter a contest as the taking of Juarez. The feeling between these two metropolises is something that probably would have been things doing in Mexico that would have made the inscription itself look inconsequential. It was no less an outrage because it was visited upon the most peaceful and industrious of all the peoples of the world.

China is not much of a war power, its fighting strength goes nowhere, but it may contain one first-class and three second-class cruisers. Mexico practically has no navy at all, unless five third-class cruisers can be called a navy. Properly manned, China's ships can bring Mexico to terms at the important ports on the Pacific coast of Mexico might be effectively tied up by the Chinese warships.

The chief point of interest in China's demand, however, is the opportunity it will afford the new ruler in Mexico to show just how much civilization attaches to it. If the new government is in the bags of who and just when, the Torreón armada will be promptly added to the Mexican government and submitted to impartial arbitration. It is Mexico's duty to render as far as possible the entire population of Torreón with a proper apology and full reparation by the laws and justice decreed.

Boton Bangs: The Evening Herald says representatives of the Associated Press seem to have met with some difficulty in getting at the real facts in connection with the week in Durango last week. We cannot but feel the opposition was bent, that it utterly failed in its purpose to show by the fact that most of the affected miners placed the fatalities about 200 far greater than the actual figures. The public has a right to this news and the company no right to suppress the actual facts. When it happens as it did in this case both the company and public suffer. And the less report before it gets started will drive it home with the hammer of frankness.

The dog control should confirm the new name of Major Elder for the three important offices in the administration of city affairs. The reasons for continuing these officials are known to the council as well as to the public and the delay is not to the credit of the council.

The provisional government of Portugal is finding it a hard job to provide a government that the people will accept. The only thing that keeps the scattered republic together is a plenty of supplies of Masonic cities, and therein it does not differ materially from past conditions.

It appears to him it is time for him to get into the limelight, but with all those well armed reds in Chihuahua the chances are that some thing will happen in the meantime if he tries to turn it on full blast.

It is impossible that among the many diseases discovered at the National Conference in Chicago and mentioned in Boston yesterday the black death and the first Diphtheria were not even mentioned.

Now doubt those coronations in memory of Franklin are very frequent in the backwoods, but sometimes it is actually hard to work a coronation out here among the Indian tribes.

Three of the things that prevent men will avoid are throwing a hand bomb with a box of gunpowder, using dynamite in school houses, and raising huge concerns about police.
